Performance and Response
Revision Guide
What do I need to know about Blood Brothers?

Students should be aware of characteristics of their studied text including genre, structure, characters, form and style, dialogue and stage directions. They should understand the social, historical and cultural contexts of the text. They should have an awareness of the theatrical conventions of the period in which their text was set. They should have considered how meaning is communicated through use of: performance space and special relationships on stage, relationships between performers and audience, design (set, costume, lighting and sound), actor’s vocal and physical interpretation of character and performance conventions including the configuration of the theatre space.

Structure

Cyclical
Blood Brothers has a plot that starts with the ending then carries on in a linear order until it reaches the end again.

Why do you think Willy Russell chose a Cyclical Structure for ‘Blood Brothers’?

………………………………………………………………

Social Class
The contrast between two different social classes forms the heart of the play. The leading characters can be seen to be social stereotypes, presented dramatically in order to emphasise certain important differences in social class. Russell does this to show the unfairness that it results in.

Education
This theme is linked to social class. Russell shows that wealth brings different educational opportunities and these lead to very different lifestyles. Eddie and Mickey are educated differently. One goes on to university and a successful career in politics, the other takes on a factory job making boxes. Redundancy and lack of opportunity then lead Mickey to crime, drug addiction and depression. Without a better education Russell is saying that Mickey had few options, and so we are asked to see Mickey’s mistakes in a sympathetic light.

The effects of education shape the lives of the women in the play too. When Mrs Johnstone loses her husband she falls into poverty, from which her lack of education has provided her with no easy means of escape. She can only acquire unskilled work and has to rely on the State for housing. Compare her with Mrs Lyons who similarly, despite presumably a middle-class education, is not self-reliant. In this case Russell is suggesting perhaps that the traditional lives the women lead have less freedom, even when they are educated.

Nature vs. Nurture
The ‘nature versus nurture’ debate is exemplified through Mickey and Eddie. They are twins and so the difference in the way their lives turn out must be a result of their different upbringings and social positions. Russell uses the concept of twins to persuade us that attitudes in society influence peoples’ lives more than their individual efforts at wanting to do well. Russell’s play is deliberately objecting to a view of Margaret Thatcher’s right wing conservative government, who claimed that everyone who wanted to work hard could be successful.
Fate and destiny
Each of the leading characters is presented as being trapped and plagued by various kinds of misfortune and bad luck. Russell seems to be asking us to consider whether there really is such a thing as fate or destiny or whether life pans out because of natural rather than supernatural reasons, because of the way we are educated and live.

Growing Up
Life, for the children, is shown to be a carefree game in Act One. However the pressures of growing up in different backgrounds and educational systems are shown to bring problems later on. It is the different experience of growing up that ends the friendship between Edward and Mickey. For example after Mickey loses his job Edward tries to be positive about his situation but Mickey tells Edward that he cannot understand living on the dole. He says that Edward hasn’t had to grow up like him, to face the difficulties of the adult world and that they don’t have anything in common any more.

Choose a theme and explain how as a Director you would highlight it within the stage production of ‘Blood Brothers’

Willy Russell was born in 1947 into a working-class family near to Liverpool. He left school at 15 without academic qualifications and became a hairdresser. By the age of 20 he felt the need to return to education and, after leaving university, he became a teacher at a comprehensive school in his home city. During this time Russell wrote songs for performers and for radio shows. One of his early plays was about the Liverpool pop group the Beatles. He has a love of popular music and this can be seen in many of his plays, but especially in Blood Brothers.

One of the playwright’s aims is to show us that there are disadvantages to being poor and working class. The failure to succeed in life is not because of a lack of ability, but a lack of opportunity. This can clearly be seen in Edward and Mickey.

Liverpool, because of its position on the River Mersey, was a prosperous seaport in the 19th century. It is a city of many contrasts. In the 20th century, because of the silting of the river, it was a place of financial depression, which led to unemployment and strikes. There was a big gap between the rich and the poor.

Liverpudlians are known for their warmth, hospitality and wit. Liverpool is also famous for its football teams and impact on culture – the Mersey Beat (poetry), the Beatles (music) and playwrights, architects etc. Mrs Johnstone’s wit and warmth typify these qualities.
The play was set between the 1960’s and 1980’s. The play was written in  and influenced by the events of the 1980’s.

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1960</td>
<td>‘Youth culture’ was becoming more evident in the 1960’s. Teenagers who enjoyed music, fashion and culture were making themselves heard more and they were often associated with freedom and potential. Teenager’s started to believe the had the power to change the future and started to be more involved in protesting the issues they believed in.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1970</td>
<td>During the 1970’s Britain was in a recession and unemployment was becoming a major issue. Britain’s traditional industries that had once dominated the work force in our towns and cities (such as coal mining and ship building) were struggling to keep up with competition from abroad. There was a strong class divide in Britain between the working and middle class. Many working class parents found it difficult to afford even basic things such as food, clothes and heating. The Middle class who worked in jobs like accountancy or teaching, were largely unaffected by the industrial decline which strengthened the divide between them and the lower classes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1980</td>
<td>In 1979 Margaret Thatcher became Prime Minister. She made the decision that Britain’s traditional industries should be shut down. This had a huge impact on working class communities where a huge amount of men were left unemployed and having to sign on to the dole. This led to an increase in depression and crime rates. One of Thatcher’s central political beliefs was that success came to those who chose to work hard. Liverpool was previously a major port which led to it being highly effected by the industrial decline. In the early 1980’s Liverpool had one of the highest unemployment rates in the country with some men turning to crime and gangs to support their families. There were also riots on the streets that were fuelled by the men’s anger at the decisions being made in government.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1990</td>
<td>Mickey, Edward and Linda’s teenage years are represented in a very positive light with a montage of them enjoying them selves at the beach and the rifle range. The Narrator Emphasises how ‘Care free’ they are at the time Mickey finds work in a factory to support his family and works hard there but is soon made redundant. He spends three months looking for work with no luck and is forced to sign on to the dole. Edward sees Mickey at Christmas and meets a very different man. The loss of his job has left him angry and powerless. Edward talks about money as if it means nothing and Mickey show him the harsh reality of a working class life. In Blood Brothers, Russell contradicts Thatcher’s view. He shows that money and influential connections are necessary to become successful. Mickey’s failure, despite his good character and hard work, is the basis of the tragedy in the drama. Mickey’s unemployment prompts him to turn to crime. Once imprisoned for his crime he sinks further into depression.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Education
Many middle class parents could afford to send their children to private school, this often led to university and a well paid job. In contrast, for most working class children living in rough areas, the schools were under funded and could not offer the same opportunities. When leaving school they needed to work to support their families and became stuck in the same low paying jobs for life.

Housing
Council houses were the homes of most working class people in the 1950s and 1960s. The terraced houses had a lot to recommend them, but they were also cramped and lacked inside toilets and bathrooms. They did not have central heating and were heated mostly by coal fires. Their inner city locations were often dirty and there was nowhere for children to play as they rarely had gardens.

New Towns
To improve standards of living, the government moved people away from the terraced houses into new council accommodation in the countryside. ‘New’ towns were created like Skelmersdale, and existing places were developed, like Runcorn and Winsford. Some high rise blocks were built also.

Mrs Johnstone is used to ‘living life on the never never’. She buys toys and furniture from the Catalogue Man and when she can’t pay for them they are taken away. We hear voices of her seven kids complaining about never having anything.

Mrs Johnstone’s family is certainly helped by their move, although not as much as she had hoped. In many ways, it is already too late for the older children, and the unemployment situation was often worse away from the city. Also, many missed the people and the amenities that they had known before, and the support network that existed all but vanished. Uprooting people can cause stress and depression.

Edward goes to university and walks straight into a high paying job on the county council. In contrast Mickey finds work in a factory but is quickly made redundant and forced to sign on to the dole.
Cultural Context

Pop culture
After the 1950s society went through massive changes. As a result of young people gradually having more money, popular culture (music, TV and film) flourished, becoming accessible to a much wider public. Even the poorest in society, people would have had the chance to go to the cinema or to a club for dancing. Bands like The Beatles (who came from Liverpool) had huge fan bases and their music represented the feeling of being young and free.

Mrs Johnstone’s love of ‘dancing’ is a love of escape from her everyday life. She sings about going dancing with Mr Johnstone and how as she grows up and becomes a single mother of seven she misses it.

Film and Television
The rise of advertising and colour television meant that even children were exposed to things like films, television programs and celebrities in a way they hadn’t been before. Young people often imitated characters from film and television.

The working class boys love of playful but ‘violent’ games, playing at cowboys and gangsters is influenced by films.

Marilyn Monroe
Marilyn Monroe was a very famous Hollywood actress. Her image was well known even to people who did not watch her films. She was presented by the media as a kind of ‘perfect’ fantasy woman and she was shown to live a glamorous and carefree lifestyle. The reality was often very different. She needed anti-depressants and eventually died from an overdose of pills.

Russell uses references to Monroe throughout the play. At each point he refers to a different aspect of her life and public image. Mrs Johnstone enjoys the glamour of Monroe's public image. Later in the play Mickey becomes hooked on anti-depressant ‘nerve pills’ and this is compared to Monroe's own depression.

Blood Brothers contains elements of more than one Genre
Musical
Within Musicals, acting can often be slightly melodramatic and the characters emotions are often expressed through song.

Naturalistic
When acting in the Naturalistic style the actors must make the audience believe that what is happening on stage is real. Their emotions must be true to life and expressed in a realistic way.

Non-Naturalistic
Non-Naturalistic performances contain performance conventions that could not happen in real life and are therefore not believable to the audience. They can however express emotions and ideas to the audience that may not be possible through Naturalism.

Choose a moment in ‘Blood Brothers’ that is particularly Naturalistic and explain how you would direct the actors characterisation.

‘Blood Brothers' uses many performance conventions in order to express emotions and ideas to the audience. Some examples of these are-
- Tableaux
- Narrator
- Multi-Rolling
- Montage
- Monologue (Song)

Choose two conventions and explain how they are used in Blood Brothers and what impact they have on the audience.

Blood Brothers contains elements of more than one Style
Multi-Rolling
The narrator plays several different characters who are all very negative and unsympathetic towards the protagonists-
• The Milkman- Won’t give Mrs Johnstone any milk even though she is pregnant.
• The Gynaecologist- Very abruptly tells her she will have more ‘Mouths to feed’, playing on her worries.
• The teachers- Both teachers treat the boys badly by humiliating Mickey and threatening to beat Edward.

Tension
The narrator has a very menacing and threatening manner. He lurks above and on the edge of the scenes and is very judgemental of the characters. He speaks of the devil and superstitions and wears black as if attending the boys funeral. He moves in and out of the scenes and cannot be seen most of the time.

In Act 1 Mrs Johnstone swears on the bible that she will give Mrs Lyons her child. As a director, how would you integrate the narrator into this scene to create a tense atmosphere?

Language
The Narrator speaks differently to the other characters on stage using old fashioned sentences and rhyme. This enhances the feeling that he is not really there.
Characters

Mrs Johnstone
Mrs Johnstone is a single mother who struggles to provide for her many children. She is loving and optimistic but makes some irresponsible decisions due to her impressionable and superstitious nature.

She tells Mrs Lyons that she “loves the bones” of her children and forgives them when they misbehave.

Even though she’s been through her husband leaving her, having to give up her child, been moved from her home she stays optimistic “Ey, we’ll be alright out here, son”

She gets scared when she see’s “Shoes on the Table” and Mrs Lyons exploits her superstitions by making her swear on the bible.

She orders items from catalogues to give her kids a good life but as she is unable to pay for them they get repossessed.

She fell for her husband when he “gave her the chat” and is manipulated by Mrs Lyons

Mrs Lyons

Mrs Lyons is wealthy but unhappy. Her need for a child causes her to manipulate Mrs Johnstone into giving her Edward. Once she becomes a mother she struggles to bond with Edward and hides it by being over protective and insecure. Her paranoia progressively drives her mad.

She becomes paranoid about Edward’s relationship with the Johnstone’s. This causes her to approach Mrs J where her madness peaks as she tries to stab her.

She seeks constant reassurance that she is a good mother from Edward and doesn’t let him play out with other children.

She exploits Mrs Johnstone’s poverty and superstitions “how can you possibly avoid some of them being put into care?” and when Mrs J threatens to take back Edward she makes up a superstition about twins who meet again will die.

Mrs Lyons is a typical middle class woman of the 60's era. Her husband has a high playing job and she stays at home.

She feels like she has failed as a woman as she is unable to have children. Her home feels empty and feeds her desperation.

She exploits Mrs Johnstone’s poverty and superstitions “how can you possibly avoid some of them being put into care?” and when Mrs J threatens to take back Edward she makes up a superstition about twins who meet again will die.
Mickey Johnstone
Mickey is the twin Mrs Johnstone keeps. As a child he is very naughty but also very sensitive and loving. Growing up he starts to become insecure, particularly around girls. In adulthood he works hard at his job so after losing it and being arrested he sinks into depression.

In his monologue Mickey shows how he is influenced by his older brother Sammy “Wee’s straight through the letter box”. The foreshadows the fact he is later influenced by Sammy to commit a crime.

The other children upset Mickey easily and he cries when they chant about dying. He is very close with his mother and notices her emotions.

Although Linda makes her feelings for him very clear he is unable to tell her how he feels. He is also insecure about his intelligence and appearance, covering it up by acting the fool in lessons.

Mickey has an emotional breakdown when he is sentenced. He starts to take anti-depressants to solve his low self-esteem and resentment of Eddie.

Mickey is a working class character and gets a low paying job because of his lack of success in education and it’s what he’s expected to do. When he loses his job he walks the streets for months trying to find another one.

Edward Lyons
Edward is the twin that Mrs Johnstone gives away. He has had a privileged upbringing and is very polite with everybody, no matter their class. He rebels against his mother’s strictness but still does what is expected of him as a middle class man. Edward can be naïve and proves he isn’t loyal to Mickey.

Mr and Mrs Lyons provide Edward with everything he wants as he’s growing up with “all his own toys” and silver trays to take meals on”. However, he is happy to share all he has.

Edward is happy to be in either Middle or Working Class environments, adapting his behaviour to suit whoever he is with.

By going to the other side of town when his mother forbids him he shows a rejection of his middle class roots but quickly goes back to them once at university and getting a job on the council.

Although he and Mickey seem like the best of friends, Eddie asks Linda to marry him after Mickey has a go at him and later they have an affair.

After returning from university Eddie shows a complete lack of understanding of Mickey’s situation by saying he should “draw the dole” and “live like a bohemian”.

Linda
Linda as a young girl is strong, confident and open with her feelings. However, in contrast, as she grows up she starts to conform to gender stereotypes. Linda’s affair with Edward is a turning point in the play, leading to the dramatic ending.

She is not afraid to compete against the boys and stands up for Mickey when he gets emotional.

Linda is constantly telling Mickey she loves him when they are teenagers. However, she still waits for him to make the first move.

Linda becomes a stereotypical housewife, allowing Mickey actions to dictate what their life will be. Her sole focus is her husband and her child.

Sammy ‘Wees straight through’ the neighbours letter box and burns his school down. His use of a gun during his childhood games foreshadows his future crimes.

As Mickey’s father leaves before he is born Sammy is the only male role model he has.

Sammy
Sammy persuades Mickey to join in the robbery by reminding him of everything he hasn’t got. Sammy is a stereotypical working class youth of this time, turning to crime instead of working hard.

When the robbery goes wrong and Sammy has shot a man he runs out on Mickey.

Sammy
Mickey looks up to Sammy as a role model when they are children. As a child he is incredibly naughty and as he grows up his behaviour gets progressively worse. Sammy uses his influence over Mickey to get him in to trouble but he shows no loyalty to him when everything goes wrong.

Characters
Linda
Linda loves both Mickey and Edward (in a way) but when she becomes pregnant in this era her decision is made for her.

After Mickey’s time in prison and his depression, Eddie represents the freedom of her youth that she has lost.

Stage Directions

Explain how the following stage directions are important within their scene

Mrs Lyons shows the Bible to Mrs Johnstone, who is at first reluctant and then lays her hand on it

Music is heard as Mrs Johnstone turns and walks towards us. She is aged thirty but looks more like fifty.

The children rush into the street playing cowboys and Indians; cops and robbers; goodies and baddies

Mickey appearing from the stalls, a gun held two-handed, to steady his shaking hands and pointed directly at Edward Within ‘Blood Brothers’ the characters have certain preconceived judgements of the protagonists. However, we as the audience have a different perception as we are shown the characters internal struggle through songs and monologues. Towards the end of Act 1 the policeman takes both Mickey and Edward home. How does Russell show the different perceptions that the policeman has of Mickey and Edward?

As an audience how do we perceive Mickey and Edward in this scene?

Proxemics can be used to analyse characters relationships. As actors we can convey two or more characters relationships by thinking about their distance from each other and how they are positioned. If you were directing the scene in act 1 where Mickey and Edward first meet, how would you direct the actors to show their change in relationships through proxemics?
Types of Staging

Proscenium Arch
The original staging for Blood Brothers. The audience sits in front of the stage, usually in straight rows. The audience views the stage as if looking at the action through a picture frame (the forth wall)

Positives for Blood Brothers

Negatives for Blood Brothers

In-the-Round
Theatre in the Round is a form of audience seating layout where the acting area is surrounded on all sides by seating. There are often a number of entrances. Special consideration needs to be given to furniture and scenery as audience sightlines can easily be blocked.

Positives for Blood Brothers

Negatives for Blood Brothers
Thrust
The stage is a rectangle and the audience directly face the stage from each of the three sides.
Positives for Blood Brothers

Negatives for Blood Brothers

---

Traverse
The acting area is down the middle of the space. The audience sits facing the acting area from two sides.
Positives for Blood Brothers

Negatives for Blood Brothers

Black Box
A Black Box Theatre is a simple, open space consisting of four walls, a floor, and a ceiling that are all painted black. It is a bare room with a movable seating area, a movable stage, and a flexible lighting system.
Positives for Blood Brothers

Negatives for Blood Brothers

Promenade
In promenade theatre there is no formal stage, both the audience and the actors are placed in the same space. The performance starts when one of the actors draws attention to himself or light is pointed in such manner that draws attention to a particular person. During the performance actors will stimulate the audience to move around.

Composite set
A stage setting where several locations are represented in the same space and isolated or highlighted by lighting each area separately.

Non-Naturalistic set
Set may not be true to life but is more symbolic.

Adaptable Set
Adaptable sets can change quickly to show different locations.

Set

Semiotics are the symbols that can be contained within the design elements (set, lighting, sound, costume and props)

As a designer, how would you show the Social, Cultural and Historical context within the set design?

---

Which set would you choose for ‘Blood Brothers’ and why?

Semiotics are the symbols that can be contained within the design elements (set, lighting, sound, costume and props)
Choose a performance space and within the box above design a set for Blood Brothers. Label each element with a justification.

Think about-
- Demands of your performance space
- Entrances/exits
- Levels
- Social, Cultural and Historical Context
- Adaptability
Key Word | Definition
--- | ---
Gobo | A thin metal plate with specific shapes cut out to produce a design which can then be projected by a spotlight.
Backlit | Light coming from upstage, behind scenery or actors, to sculpt and separate them from the background.
Blackout | The act of turning off (or fading out) stage lighting.
Gel | The coloured 'filters' placed in front of theatre lights to colour the beam.
Flood | A lantern that produces a broad spread of light across the stage
Spotlight | A lantern projecting a narrow, intense beam of light directly on to a place or person
Cross fade | Bringing another lighting state up to completely replace the current lighting state.

Lighting design in theatre goes beyond simply making sure that the audience can see the stage (although this is very important!). Light can be used to establish the time or location of a performance, or to create and enhance mood and atmosphere.

As a designer, how would you light the scene in act 2 when Mrs Lyons goes mad after attacking Mrs Johnstone?

Sound

Live Band
‘Blood Brothers is a musical and so is best when performed with a live band. The musical numbers have varied emotions including some very upbeat songs ‘Bright New Day’ and some incredibly tragic songs ‘Tell me it’s not true’. Music is a big factor in portraying these emotions to the audience.

Building Tension
Within some of the more tense scenes, Russell writes that a bass note is played and repeated as a heartbeat. This is often played when the Narrator is on stage and sets an incredibly tense and threatening atmosphere.

Shock Factor
The gunshots that kill Mickey and Eddie are very loud and echo around the theatre in order to shock and emotionally effect the audience.

Act 2 Montage
Throughout the following we see Linda, Mickey and Edward, as if at the beach, Linda taking a picture of Mickey and Edward, arms around each other, camping it for the camera but eventually giving good and open smiles. Mickey taking a picture of Edward and Linda, Edward down on one knee and kissing her hand. Edward taking a picture of Mickey and Linda. Mickey pulling a distorted face, Linda wagging her finger at him. Mickey chastened. Linda raising her eyebrows and putting one of his arms around her. Linda waving the narrator to snap them. He goes. Linda showing the narrator how to operate the camera. Linda Mickey and Edward all grouped together, arms around each other as the narrator takes the picture.

Narrator - It’s just another ferry boat, a trip to the beach
But everything is possible, the worlds within your reach
An’ you don’t notice the broken bottles in the sand
The oil in the water and you can’t understand
How living could be anything other than a dream
When you young, free and innocent and Just eighteen

As a sound designer, how would you use sound to add atmosphere to this montage? Justify your answer.

Costume design is important to show the audience the personality, class and status of a character. It can also help to show the time period and location that the play is set in.

Don’t forget to think about colour, material, make up, hair, shoes etc. Costume design is all about the little details.
The bible is important to Mrs Johnstone as a religious woman. When she has to swear on the bible she knows it means she can’t take it back as she is superstitious. Mrs Lyons knows this too and takes advantage of it.

Edward shares his sweets with Mickey and we see the difference between their classes as Mickey sees sweets as a luxury and Edward is happy to give them away. Later in the play Mickey becomes addicted to anti-depressants and sees them as the only thing that can make him better.

What do the toy gun and real gun symbolise to the audience throughout the play?

Russell uses props as symbols throughout the play. Many props even change later in the play to show the change in the characters as they grow older.
The overture comes to a close.

Mrs Johnstone (singing)
Tell me it’s not true. Day it’s just a story.

The Narrator steps forward.

Narrator (speaking)
So did y’ hear the story of the Johnstone twins?
As like each other as two new pins
Of one womb born, on the same day,
How one was kept and one given away?
An’ did you never hear how the Johnstones
died,
Never knowing that they shared one name,
Till the day they died, when a mother cried
My own dear sons lie slain?
The lights come up to show a re-enactment of the final moments of the play - the deaths of Mickey and Edward.
The scene fades.

Mrs Johnstone enters with her back to the audience.

Narrator
An’ did y’ never hear of the mother, so cruel,
There’s a stone in place of her heart?
Then bring her on and come judge for yourselves
How she came to play this part.

The Narrator exits

Music is heard as Mrs Johnstone turns and walks towards us. She is aged thirty but looks more like fifty.

Mrs Johnstone (singing)
Once I had a husband,
You know the sort of chap,
I met him at a dance and how he came on with the chat.
He said my eyes were deep blue pools,
My skin as soft as snow,
He told me I was sexier than Marilyn Monroe.
Choose a scene from Act 1 and explain why it is important within the plot

As a designer, how would you highlight the key themes in this scene using semiotics?

Choose a scene from Act 2 and explain why it is important within the plot

As a director, how would you direct the characters within this scene to use their voice and movement?
Mrs Johnstone slowly walks down the centre aisle toward the platform.
Policeman 2 What’s that woman doin’?
Policeman 1 Get that woman away...
Policeman 2 Oh Christ.
Mrs Johnstone Mickey. Mickey. Don’t shoot him, Mickey...
Mickey continues to hold the gun in position.
Mickey Go away, Mam... Mam you go away from here.
Mrs Johnstone No, son. (She walks onto the platform)
Mickey (Shouting) Mam!
Mrs Johnstone Mickey. Don’t shoot Eddie. He’s your brother. You had a twin brother. I couldn’t afford to keep both of you. His mother couldn’t have kids. I agreed to give one of you away!
Mickey (Something that begins deep down inside him) You! (Screaming) You! Why didn’t you give me away? (He stands glaring at her, almost uncontrollable with rage.) I could have been ... I could have been him!
On the word ‘him’ Mickey waves at Edward with his gun hand. The gun explodes and blows Edward apart. Mickey turns to the Policemen, screaming the word ‘No’. They open fire and four guns explode, blowing Mickey away. Linda runs down the aisle.
The Policemen are heard through the loudhailer.
Policemen Nobody move, please. It’s all right, it’s all over, just stay where you are.
Music. As the light begins to dim we see the Narrator watching.
Narrator And do we blame superstition for what came to pass? Or could it be what we, the English, have come to know as class?
Did you ever hear the story of the Johnstone twins?
As like each other as two new pins
How one was kept and one given away,
How they were born, and they died, on the selfsame day?
Mrs Johnstone (Singing)
Tell me it’s not true, Say it’s just a story.
